CHOYNSKI TOO ILL TO FIGHT MAHER.

Stricken a Few Hours Before the Time Set for the Battle.

BOUT WAS DECLARED OFF.

Corbett and McCoy Declare They Are on Edge for To-Morrow Night's Contest, and Both Are Very Confident.

New York, Aug. 28-The heavy-weight fight between Peter Maher and Joe Choynski, which was to have taken place at the Broadway Athletic Club to-night, had to be declared off on account of Choynski's sickness.

Choynski, who has been training on Staten Island, came up to the city this evening and went to his room in the Colonnade Hotel, next door to the clubhouse. About 7 o'clock he had an attack of stomach trouble, and a physician was hurriedly summoned. The doctor, after examining Choynski, said that he was totally untit to take part in any ring contest.

As soon as Manager Michael Padden of the Broadway Athletic Club heard this he declared the bout off and refunded the money to the spectators who had already paid for admission. Choyaski is not seriously afflicted, but it will be impossible for him to meet Maher before the expiration of the Horton law, which allows boxing in this State. CORBETT IN SHAPE.

He Will Go to New York City Thursday Noon.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Aug. 28.—If James J. Corbett is defeated in his battle with Kid McCoy, which takes place Thursday night at Madison Square Garden, he will have no excuse to effer as to his physical condition. Although not quite so rugged-looking as heretofore in appearance, Corbett is in good trim, and when he meets the Hoosier boxer trim, and when he meets the Hoosler boxer he will be prepared to give that crafty Indianian the flight of his career. Corbett, who has been preparing for his encounter down at Bath Beach, put the finishing touches to his work to-day and to-morrow will take things easy. The Corbett camp was crowded with spectators who journeyed to the beach to get a line on the former champion.

was crowded with spectators who journeyed to the beach to get a line on the former champion.

In the morning, Corbett, accompanied by his trainer, "Spider" Kelly, and Dal Hawkins, went for a five-mile jog along the shore road and returned to the quarters shortly before noon. The Californian was none the worse for his little jaunt, and as his trainers were busy rubbing him down, he spoke freely about his fight with the Kid. Said Corbett:

"This is pretty warm weather for training and one must be very careful not to overdo it. However, I am glad the time is up. The hardest work is done now, unless McCoy gives me a little surprise party. I don't think he will, but you can bet I'll be prepared for the "foxy quitter." To tell the truth, I think I will have a short fight. I'm pretty sure if won't go the limit, and I won't be knocked out, either."

After leaving the symmasium, Corbett joined his manager, George Considine, and a party of friends at the hotel and indulged in a game of cards until lunch time. An hour's rest followed and Jim then returned to the Pier, where he put on the gloves for a five-round go with Spider Kelly and punched the bag for lifteen minutes.

At the conclusion of his work Corbett said that he never felt better, Indeed, his fast work did not appear to make him the least bit tired. His wind is perfect.

To-morrow Corbett will do light indoor work and will remain at his quarters until Thursday noon, when he will come to the city.

quarters at Satatoga to-morrow morning and remain in the city until it is time for him to go to the Garden arena. He has arranged to take a jog around Central Park to-morrow afternoon, and on Thursday morning he will just keep his muscles supple and active.

There has been little betting on the result

What Corbett, Fitz., Sharkey, Jeffries and Rublin Are Doing. BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Aug. 28.-Fitzsimmons has poked those murdering, freckled arms of his into the sleeves of a hot-weather suit. A jaunty straw hat tilts forward on his bald head, and his terrible right grasps the silver head of an up-to-date cane. Left shifts and solar-plexus smashes en-ter into his calculations no more. He is grough with the ring and its vanities—at Ruhlin is still suiking in his tent, as it Ruhlin is still suiking in his tent, as it were, and Sharkey is down at Sheepshead chasing the chickens out of the cucumber beds and trying to forget the sorrows of defeat in the homely joys and destiny obscure which attach to a farmet's life.

Jeffries is training for a season behind the footlights. He is trying to break himself of crouches when he advances to greet the leading lady, and his thoughts are not of the rowed source.

The center and every portion of the pugli-istic stage is deserted save for Corbett and McCoy, the exponents of refined fisticums, the last pair of heavy-weight boxers who are to swat each other for the delectation of craning thousands before the Horton law passes out of existence.

present indications are that a bumper house will greet them.

There has long been a desire to see the twain come together. While their styles differ widely, they are admittedly the two most tainted thumpers the century has seen.

Corbett is spoken of as the Paganini of the ring. It is claimed that he can make the gloves taik. McCoy is quite brilliant at repartee, and, as a consequence, every one looks forward to an animated dispute. Corbett is training at Bath Beach and McCoy at Saratoga. Each man says that he is as fit as it is possible to get when conditioning for a contest in such uncomfortably warm weather.

The Corbett of to-day is not, of course, the husky youngster who defeated Sullivan

Sharkey, However, Is Sure That the Kid Will Win.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Aug. 28 .- While Fitzsimmons has not been on friendly terms with Corbett for some time, the Cornishman, nevertheles, is frank in his opinion that the Californian will win in his contest with the big Hoosler. The reasons given by Fitzsimmons are given in the following state-

"I think Corbett will beat McCoy. This "I think Corbett will beat McCoy. This is my honest opinion, Corbett is too big, strong and clever for McCoy, and the Kid will surely find this out before the battle has gone many rounds. They say Corbett can't punch. Well, take it from me, he can, and pretty hard at that. He landed often enough on me when I found him in Carson City, and although the blows looked very weak to the persons who were looking at the fight, they, nevertheless, left their impression on me, just as they will looking at the fight, they, nevertheless, left their impression on me, just as they will on McCoy, providing Corbett is successful in getting them in on the Kid. McCoy is the harder hitter of the two, but as Corbett is the cieverest boxer, and also the best ring general, I really can't see how he is going to lose. Another thing which will help him to beat McCoy is the great amount of science he is possessed of at the present time. He has improved greatly since he fought me, and, besides, has grown much stronger. His great showing with Jim Jeffries, whom he stood off for twenty-

Tom Sharkey, however, thinks McCoy is a better boxer than Corbett and has a punch that ought to win. Sharkey has fought Corbett and McCoy and knows pretty well the styles of both men. Sharkey likes McCoy personally, and is unquestionably impressed by the showing the Kid made against him some time ago. On the other hand, he has no use for Corbett. Sharkey makes this statement:

"I look for Kid McCoy to win his fight with Jim Corbett on Thursday night in less than eight rounds. The Kid has got to do it in that time if he intends to win at all, but he will know that he has been in a fight before he is through. # AGED RANKS PASS IN GRAND REVIEW.

Largest Parade of Union Veterans Since the Close of the War.

OLD FLAGS IN FEEBLE HANDS.

Torn and Faded Battle Emblems Again Borne by Those Who Supported Them on Many Southern Fields.

Chicago, Aug. 28.-For four hours and a half to-day the thinning ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic passed in review before their leaders and before probably a million spectators, packed in almost solid masses along the four miles of the lines of parade.

It marked the climax of the thirty-fourth annual encampment of the association of veterans who filled the pages of history with deeds of heroism during the weary years of the Civil War, and was, according to Commander-in-Chief Shaw, the greatest parade since that day in Washington when the hundreds of thousands of veterans, the most powerful army on earth, marched in review to their final disbandment. Probably 30,000 members of the army of veterans took part in the parade. For exactly four hours and twenty minutes, most of the time with ranks almost perfectly aligned, but occasionally faltering under the burden of the years, they filed past the reviewing stand on Michigan avenue, saluting, as they marched by, General Nelson A. Miles, Commander-in-Chief Shaw, General Daniel E. Sickles and the Spanish Minister, Duke d'Arcos.

Weather conditions were almost ideal for he parade, wearisome enough at best for the silver-maired veterans. The rays of the sun were veiled by light fleecy clouds nearly all day, and even when unobscured their effect was greatly tempered by a cool breeze which biew steadily off Lake Michigan. The line of march, too, was much shorter than ever before mapped out for the annual parade, its entire length not being over four miles, but, notwithstanding, here and there a veteran, dazed and exhausted, dropped out of the ranks. Especially was this true of the reviewing stand when passed, and many pathetic scenes were witnessed down the long stretch of Michigan avenue as the veterans fell by the wayside.

Veteran Fell in Ranks. One especially sad incident occurred to mar in a degree the giory of the parade, Charles Beckwith of Algonsea, Mich., dropping dead as the line was fliing past the corner of Michigan avenue and Madison street. The parade was halted for a moment, the body of the veteran who had responded to his last call was tenderly removed and his comrades passed on. It was shortly before 10:20 a, m. when the head of the column started from the corner of Michigan avenue and Randolph street, and an hour later it was filing past the re viewing stand.

Cheer after cheer went up as General Daniel E. Sickles, accompanied by his aids, rode past. All along the line of march the General had been given a most flattering greeting, but the warmth of the reception that met him as he approached the stand where Commander Shaw was awaiting to receive his salute caused him to flush with pleasure and to bow his acknowledgments again and again.

Twelve heralds in costume, each bearing a long trumpet, came down the avenue an-

A long line of carriages followed the battle flars, each containing ladies who are officials of the various organizations which are affiliated with the Grand Army. Close behind the carriages came three platoons of the members of Columbia Post, acting as a rear guard, while a score of veterans as a special escort marched beside the vehicles. Bidwell Wilkeson Post of Buffalomade a fine appearance as they came marching past the stand headed by the Euffalo Military Band of fifty places. The old Continental Drum and Eugle Corps of New York City, led by Chapin Post, also from New York, and both were heartly cheered for their excellent appearance and marching. Then came the Arion Military Band of Milwaukee, forming the yanguard of the various departments, which marched under the leadership of their department commanders.

with three battle lads. Nathly every post in the Pennsylvania section, in fact, proudly marched behind one or more of these mute reminders of the Southern battlefields of years ago, and every standard was saluted and cheered.

New York was rich with three emblems. O'Rourke Post, No. 1, of Rochester, N. Y., the veterans all in uniform and carrying emblems, held aloft two Civil War hanners. Chapin Post, No. 2, of Buffalo, headed by the Old Continental Drum and Bugle Corps, carried twenty-three battle flags and one guidon, all of them in ribbons. The Thirteenth Infantry of Rochester, N. Y., the regiment that met such heavy losses at Malvern Hill, bore unfurled their flag. It was ragged and faded almost white, but it had the names of many hard-fought battles inscribed thereon, and the crowds it had the names of many nard-fought hattles inscribed thereon, and the crowds greeted this, too, with sreat cheering.

One of the most striking features of the parade was the appearance of the Iowa veterans, thousands in number, and headed by the A. O. U. Band of Cedar Falls, Speaker Henderson received an ovation from lowans Make a Hit.

He was recognized as the veterans from the was recognized as the veterans from the Hawkeye State reached the stand, and the band stopped in front of his box, ceased their playing and raised their voices in a cong. "From Iowa." the chorus of which, thundered out by a thousand or more vet-erans, was as follows:

We're from the Wild Rose State,
From Iowa, Iowa,
Just across the Mississippi River,
Iowa, Iowa,
And we're just the stuff.

Louisiana veterans, who carried sticks of sugar cane topped with great bunches of cotton; by the veterans of North Dakota, carrying small sheaves of wheat of their prairies, into which was stuck a small flag, and by the South Dakota posts, each man carrying an enormous ear of corn mounted on a staff.

Shortly after passing the reviewing stand the line of march disbanded, and most of the veterans, tired with the hours of march, sought their hotels and lodging-houses. Commander-in-Chief Shaw remained standing until the last veteran had filed by.

"We will never have another parade like it," he said, turning to Bishop Fallows. "The comrades are getting old. The years are pressing them closely. But this one will live in our memory."

The evening was given up entirely to affairs of a social character, the chief even being an informal reception to Commander, and distinguished guests, at Memorial Hall, it was largely attended, thousands of old soldiers coming to greet the high officials of their own. In twenty-six different places in the downtown district reunions of States were held. The ladies of the G. A. R. also held receptions during the evening.

The annual business meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held to-morrow merning in the Studebaker Theater, commencing at 10 o'clock.
